Bodega Benegas is a small winery devoted exclusively to the production of high end wines. The quality of these wines are based in the excellent terroir of the two owned vineyards. One of them, Finca Libertad, belonged in the past to the Benegas family and was rebought by Federico Benegas Lynch in 1999. This vineyard has very old vines that age from 60 to 120 years, with vines of Cabernet Franc, Cabernet Sauvignon, Malbec, Sangiovese, Syrah, Merlot and Petit Verdot. Federico Benegas inherited a passion for distinguished winemaking that shows in the elegance of its wines. The second vineyard is La Encerrada in Gualtallary district in Tupungato, Uco Valley. This is the vineyard where Benegas grows its excellent malbec at 1450mts above the sea level. The winery is located in Lujan de Cuyo, 20 minutes away from Mendoza city. With a total production of 30.000 9 lt cases and a potential of 80.000 9 lt cases, the Benegas wines are growing steadily in the export market.

Bodega del Fin del Mundo is the first winery in the Province of Neuquén. Its vineyards are located in San Patricio del Chañar, a place where the agro-environmental conditions are ideal for growing vines. The fantastic temperature range - higher than 20°C between night and day - caused by warm sunny days and cool nights, brings balance to the grapes and gives the wines their color, acidity, aromas and structure. Intense sun rays pass through the almost always clear sky, thus allowing the grapes to ripen in the correct manner. Low humidity and scarce rainfall - only 180 mm a year - keep the vineyard extraordinarily healthy. The first vineyards were planted in 1999 and since then, 2000 hectares were planted, 1000 hectares out of these 2000 would be part of the project to build the winery known as Bodega Del Fin del Mundo. It is important to emphasize that the rest of the existing wineries in San Patricio del Chañar have their origins in the mentioned project. Its 1000 hectare vineyards grow in this Patagonian scenery, naturally healthy and on sandy and stony soils. Distribution is 85% of red grapes, with Cabernet Sauvignon, Malbec, Merlot, Pinot Noir, Tannat, Cabernet Franc and Syrah, and 15% of white grapes, with Sauvignon Blanc, Chardonnay, Semillón and Viognier.

In 2005, the Bonnie family, owner of the renowned Château Malartic-Lagravière (Grand Cru Classé de Graves) and of the Château Gazin Rocquencourt (Pessac-Léognan), decided to leave France in search for new horizons in the world of wine. It all began with the acquisition, along with their partners, of a single 130-hectares (321 acres) block of land in the heart of the Uco Valley, to the south of the city of Mendoza. That is where Bodega DiamAndes was born, as a member of the prestigious Clos de los Siete group. The winery's architectural design blends harmoniously into the stunning Andean scenery. In this context, the winemaking process has taken place under exceptional conditions since the 2007 vintage.

Bodega Vistalba was built between 2001 and 2004 in a family-owned land at the heart of Vistalba (Luján de Cuyo). This is where Carlos Pulenta developed his personal viticulture project, involving members of his family, consultants, enologists and a valuable group of people who really know this land. The winery is inspired in the Creole culture, resorting to cutting-edge technology and paying homage to traditional wine-making. It has been designed so that the entire winemaking process is completed using gravity and without pumps. The first wines were produced in the year 2003, and they were first placed on the market in the year 2005. Today, its wines are sold in more than 20 countries.

Bodega & Cavas de Weinert was founded by Don Bernardo Weinert, a Brazilian of German origins, in Luján de Cuyo, Mendoza. Fascinated with the wine world, Don Bernardo Weinert decided to build his own winery in Argentina with an unconditional approach: to produce high quality wines. In 1996, Hubert Weber, a Swiss oenologist became part of the winery. With only 27 years old he became Bodega & Cavas de Weinert main oenologist till the present.

CASARENA (translated as "Sand House") Winery & Vineyards is named after the earth-toned stucco exterior of the winery located on Brandsen Street, in the heart of Perdriel district in Luján de Cuyo Region. Approximately 20 minutes away from downtown Mendoza, this viticulture project began in 2007 after the rebuilding of a century-old family winery. At the moment the winery offers three different wine styles: 505, CASARENA, RAMANEGRA and has recently released its two exclusive SINGLE VINEYARDS, all of them produced from their own vineyards located in Agrelo and Perdriel, two of the most well-known terroirs in Mendoza.

Finca Agostino winery, located in Maipú - Mendoza, counts on a total capacity of 3.000.000 lts, divided on: stainless steel tanks (2 million lts) and epoxy-sealed concrete pools (1 million lts). 100% wines Estate grown and bottle. The role of technology is essential for Finca Agostino as it allows the optimum characteristics offered by the vineyard to be maintained during the wine-making process. For the ageing of the wines, the winery counts on two climate-controlled cellars, one for the American and French oak barrels and the other for the wine's evolution inside the bottle. The vineyard estates located in Barrancas, Maipú (Barrancas Estate 300 ha) and El Cepillo (La Serafina Estate 50 ha), San Carlos, Uco Valley, both privileged and internationally recognized areas, provide the grapes that are exclusively used for the elaboration of the wines. Finca Agostino is the first winery in South America to obtain both IFS and BRC certifications for quality systems and food safety. These certifications constitute evidence of the winery's compliance of the legislations on food safety and fulfill its firm goal of achieving excellence in the quality of the wines.

Chakana endorsed the fair trade standards of the international organization Fair For Life. They consider that the use of organic and biodynamic agricultural methods and their certification is the best guarantee they can offer to their consumers. This decision requires the elaboration of wines from grapes from their own vineyards, a detailed study of the conditions of the soils and the understanding of their ecosystems to obtain qualitatively higher expressions. Chakana obtained organic certification according to international standards and since 2016 biodynamic certification by Demeter for its Agrelo vineyard.

The origins of Bodega Malma take you back to 2001, when a wine making project, unimagined as at that time, was developed, thus turning 2000 hectares of Patagonian desert into a beautiful area of vineyards. Bodega Malma saw the light with this development, placed in a region with excellent weather conditions for growing grapevines and with a large temperature gap. This factor constitutes an essential feature to enable grapes to ripe slowly and favors a greater accumulation of sugar, levels of acidity, aromas and flavors.

Hervé Joyaux Fabre, owner and director of Fabre Montmayou, was born in Bordeaux, France, to a family of wine negociants. When he arrived in Argentina in the early 90's looking for opportunities to invest in vineyards and start a winery, he was impressed by the potential for Malbec in Mendoza. As a true visionary, he bought very old Malbec vineyards, planted in 1908, and built the Fabre Montmayou winery in the purest Chateau Style from Bordeaux. His passion and "savoir faire" did the rest, enabling him to begin producing exceptional wines that have achieved international acclaim and are enjoyed in over twenty countries. With constant care and personal style - essential elements for great quality - Fabre Montmayou combines modern winemaking, Mendoza's terroir and the Bordeaux "savoir faire" to produce wines of unique personality. Its vineyards are located in the best grape growing areas in Mendoza. They farm with traditional methods and without herbicides in order to obtain the best grapes while respecting the environment.

Bodegas Krontiras was created in 2004 by Constantinos Krontiras and Silvina Macipe-Krontiras. Their love for Argentina and their passion for good wine gave birth to a family owned, organic and biodynamic project whose wines offer a distinguished natural expression of the Mendoza terroir. They are dedicated in the production of natural wines through organic and biodynamic growing and create their wines letting nature do its work, using wild yeast and intervening as less as possible to the elaboration process. They respect its land and try to make the best of its gifts working with absolute traceability so that every wine enthusiast knows that the wines come directly from its own grapes. It is the first wine project in Mendoza to process its organic and biodynamic grapes in its own certified organic and biodynamic Winery.

This project begins with the dream of being a Finca supplier of grapes for high-end wines. At first it was not easy, it was quite a challenge, the farm was in a virgin and original area, the land was a mountain with native species, mainly colonized by jarilla, carob and cactus, all species that develop in arid areas. Today, after working days from sun to sun, they can be proud to have planted 110 of the 200 hectares with high quality vines and almonds thanks to the care of excellence that they make.

In 2001, a team of Argentine entrepreneurs with a budding interest in wine was just crazy enough to see the raw and untapped potential in the soil of the Alto Valle del Rio Colorado region, located in the northern part of Patagonia. Their vision was complemented by a qualified and courageous group of experts - all with the same pioneering spirit. Together, they would go onto set up shop in a small town named 25 de Mayo, in the province of La Pampa. After listening to and learning from this unique and challenging landscape, the first stages of Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc, Merlot, Syrah, and Chardonnay vines were planted. In 2003 Malbec, Pinot Noir, Sauvignon Blanc and Viognier varietals were added, bringing the vineyard's scale to a full 140 hectares. The group brought in oak barrels from France and The United States, and set up a facility that now measures out to 2,500 square meters dedicated to both production and storage and has a crushing capacity of almost 1.5 million kilos. Bodega del Desierto loves surprising people and has been proudly exceeding presumptions on Patagonian desert viticulture ever since the release of their first group of wines back in 2004.

Bodegas San Huberto is an emblematic Argentinean winery and its origins date back to 1905. During almost 90 years it produced table wines from local grapes. In 1998, the winery was acquired by the Spadone Group which implemented a huge transformation plan supported by significant investments. The objective was to incorporate state of the art technology and winemaking techniques to produce world class wines. The total capacity is 10 million liters. The new administration preserved the 60-year old vineyards and planted new vines to ensure full self-supply of grapes. The company owns 400 hectares of vineyards located in La Rioja and Mendoza (Uco Valley). International wine consultants were hired to complement their professional's local knowledge. The Spadone Group owns several companies across different economic sectors, such as multimedia and show business, agribusiness, logistic and wines.

Leading the industry in 1925, the Rutini family planted the first vineyards in Tupungato, in the heart of the Uco Valley. Named after one of Mendoza's mountain peaks, the Tupungato Valley was no more than a stop-over on the road to the mountains when the Rutini family began to plant their first vines. At an elevation of 3000 to 5000 feet (900 to 1500 meters) above sea level, the Tupungato Valley offers many different microclimates, creating optimal growing conditions. Today it's recognized as one of Mendoza's premier viticulture regions.

Established in 1901 by Leoncio Arizu, Bodega Luigi Bosca has a long-standing track record in the winemaking industry. Currently managed by the third and fourth generations of the Arizu family, it is one of the few winemaking firms still owned by its founders. Its reputation, built over the years, has become the paradigm of Argentine wine. The global expansion of Bodega Luigi Bosca has consolidated its more than a hundred years' reputation on the basis of the expertise gained and transferred over the years, the sustainable and homogeneous quality of its wines, and the perpetual search for excellence through innovation and state-of-the-art technology. Today, the Arizu family is proud of a tradition of more than a hundred years old, over which the family has worked hard to improve winemaking techniques, while observing and understanding Nature to give birth to its vision of wine. Hence, they made a commitment to grow with each harvest, and to understand those who choose their wines.

The Salentein estate consists of 2,000 hectares (4,942 acres), 800 hectares (1,976 acres) of which are planted to grapes in three estate "fincas". The fincas, where grapes are grown at a range of altitudes among the highest in the world, are irrigated with pure mountain run-off, which creates lower pH in the grape, resulting in higher acidity, more color in the wine, and greater ageability. The region's thermal amplitude ranges as much as 16°C (29°F) from daytime highs to nighttime lows.
